

Democracy in India

IN a democracy country people themselves select and elect a representative as their leader. Democracy can be defined as the Government of the People, by The People and for the People. It is a political system where people are supreme and freedom of choice is its core. The term 'democracy' originated from the Greek term 'demokratia' which means Rule of the people. There are two types of democracies in the world. One is direct democracy, in which the eligible citizens directly and actively participate in the political decision making.
